CHEST CRUSHED.

Two Wagon Wheels Pass Over Boy's Body.

Little Son of Press Martin Happens to Bad Accident Near Union Tabernacle.

A little 8-year-old son of Mr. Press Martin, the hogshead maker, fell from a wagon Wednesday afternoon, near the Union Tabernacle, and two wheels passed over his chest.

The wagon was loaded with empty hogsheads and the boy's older brother was driving. The latter struck one of the horses with a whip, causing the team to lunge, when the younger boy fell under the wagon.

Dr. Russell was called, made an examination and rendered the necessary surgical aid.

The little fellow's chest was mashed in, his back was badly injured and one thumb was hurt, the nail having been cut off.

He was resting easy yesterday and the indications were that he would recover.

His escape from instant death is miraculous.

CRUEL TREATMENT.

Allegation in One of the Three Suits For Divorce.

Lula Booker has instituted divorce proceedings against Sidney Booker, alleging cruel treatment. Plaintiff says they were married in 1900 and separated about three weeks ago, when, she alleges, defendant beat and injured her, threatened her life and ordered her to leave. She says she went to the house of a relative and two weeks afterwards defendant came to where she was stopping and ordered her back to his house. She did not readily consent and dragged her along the road and choked her, she claims.

Mary W. Hester wants a divorce from Samuel Hester. In this suit desertion is the allegation. Plaintiff asks for a divorce and the custody of her three children. Defendant is now living in Illinois.

Ginger Fields seeks a divorce from Stella Fields. They were married in 1893 and the petition states that they parted company three years later.

FEW PRIVATE SALES

On account of the Sunday School Convention there was little done this week in tobacco circles. There were a few private sales of common leaf, however, at prices about the same as those of last week's quotations. Receipts are very light.

PRISON OUTBREAK.

Three Convicts at Frankfort Shot in an Attempt to Escape.

One of Them, Wallace Bishop, of Covington, Liable to Die.

Frankfort, Ky., August 20.—The officials of the state penitentiary and the citizens of Frankfort were thrown into state of wild excitement this morning by a mutiny in the prison.

This morning as the prisoners were coming out from breakfast three desperate convicts, Lafayette Brooks, Wallace Bishop and Tom Mulligan, started a riot as if by preconcerted arrangement. They quickly overcame the two guards, who were in charge, Gill and Hurst, and secured their arms. Then they captured Foreman Willis, of the chair department and had almost a clear way to the outside. They were joined by Albert Ransom, a desperate negro murderer from Louisville.

The noise of the struggle and the cries of the two captive guards for help were heard and they quickly brought relief.

Before the riot, which began at 6 o'clock and lasted until after 10, was quelled and mutinous convicts captured, Bishop was fatally wounded, Mulligan was shot in the shoulder and a negro convict, Albert Ransom of Louisville, whom the desperadoes had pressed into service, was hit by a rifle ball.

When the warden came in accordance with the request of the men Bishop lowered his hands as if to renew the attack, and was instantly shot through the breast. The ball passed entirely through the body and Bishop will probably die. As soon as the firing commenced the second time all of the other prisoners surrounded.

LIVELY SCRAP.

One Participant Came Near Losing Lip.

John White, Williams & Radford's trainer, and John Turner, col., became involved in a difficulty one day this week and the latter came near losing his upper lip. During the altercation, it is charged, the negro's lip was bitten almost off. It took several stitches to hold it in place.

Turner had a warrant issued for the arrest of White, charging him with assault and mayhem. When the case was called yesterday before Judge Fowler, Turner declined to prosecute White and the matter was disposed of by the payment of one cent and costs by White.

CORN CUTTING.

Early Planting Being Put in the Shock.

Early corn is burning badly and farmers in some sections of the county have commenced cutting. The early planting will not make more than half a crop and the fodder will be almost worthless. Late corn, however, is looking better and if there is another rain in this month the late planting will make probably 75 per cent. of a crop. Especially is this estimate correct as to North Christian, where it has been fairly seasonable since planting time.

Died in Asylum.

Miss Mary Fike, who was sent to the asylum from Todd county some time ago for treatment, died in the institution Tuesday. The remains were interred near Daysville.

Mrs. Lizzie Keegan, who had been absent several weeks visiting in Illinois and buying fall millinery in St. Louis, returned home yesterday.

IN HARTFORD JAIL.

Boatner and Schlitzbaum Will Have a Long Wait.

J. W. Boatner and J. C. Schlitzbaum, the two men held over for attempting to rob the American Express Co., of $28,000 at Fordsville, are in jail at Hartford. The detectives say they have exposed the bogus package scheme and have all the men they want. They refuse to talk and cannot be tried before November. Their bonds were fixed at $30,000 each. The penalty is fine and imprisonment in jail.

BANK BURSTS.

Russellville Has a Big Sensation In Financial Circles.

Russellville, Ky., Aug. 20.—The Logan County Bank of this place has made an assignment to the Fidelity Trust and Safety Vault Company of Louisville.

The announcement has caused a profound sensation. The officers of the bank are ex-Congressman John W. Caldwell, President; David W. Caldwell, Vice-President, and H. B. Caldwell, Cashier. The directors are John W. Caldwell, D. W. Caldwell and Wilbur F. Browder. It was regarded as one of the largest financial institutions in this section of the State, and its suspension was a shock to the community. The July statement showed that there was $135,531.56 on deposit. The capital stock is $51,000.

Congress at its last session added 5,221 officers to the national pay-roll, with salaries aggregating $5,054,514.50.

MONEY RAISED.

Practically All of the $10,000 Subscribed.

Business Men Display Liberality in Securing The Tennessee Central Road.

The money needed to secure the T. C. road has nearly all been subscribed and absent merchants are expected to raise the small balance of $300 or $400 when they return from the East. The Bank of Hopkinsville subscribed $750 Wednesday, after the directors had met and discussed the matter. This was $250 more than the bank had been asked for. This shows the liberality the wide-awake business men are showing in getting the new road to come.

Mr. S. E. Trice $100; Gaither & West $100; E. B. Bassett $50; W. T. Cooper $25 additional; W. T. Williamson $25; John Bullard $25; Jno. R. Green $10 and E. B. Blake more $10 were other subscribers. These amounts raised the total to nearly $9,700.

Col. Baxter is ready to sign the agreement as soon as the conditions are complied with. The road is a certainty.

Ice Cream Supper.

The Ladies' Missionary and Aid Society of South Union church will give an ice cream supper at Church Hill Wednesday evening, August 27, at 8 o'clock. Everybody invited.

POLISH FOWLS.

The Most Beautiful of all Domestic Fowls.

The ornamental Polands are a beautiful acquisition to our domestic poultry. To make it plain, I will call it "domestic chickens," because "there are others," as with the water fowl, there are others more handsome in plumage than our domesticated varieties of ducks and geese. Likewise there are many varieties of fowls of the air, among which are different species having gorgeous plumage, almost beyond description. Upon quality, however, and its use, the value of most everything is determined, and particularly is this so with fine bred poultry—the Polish especially.

There are hundreds, yes thousands, of poor, inferior Polish being bred and put on the market every year, because, in most cases, the breeders do not honestly realize what really first class specimens of the Polish are. There are, however a few breeders, few indeed, who have up-to-date modern, crested Polish.

The size and shape of the crest and beard are the principal points of excellence in fine Polish, which are the attractive features of all varieties of this class, whether of the solid or parti-colored varieties. With solid or self-color there is not so much trouble to breed them true. If successful with this section one certainly has a cinch on quality. With the parti-colored Polands for the fancy, a large, good shaped crest and beard, with clean, well defined lacings, are valued beyond size or utility. Most all Polish have the last named desirable features from a commercial standpoint, as Polish are a non-setting breed and very good layers, but we cannot reasonably expect two extremes in a single specimen, yet occasionally we do have them as I have owned immensely crested specimens that were regular egg machines.

Although Polish with small crests, of good shape, may score "way up," they are not strictly of fancy quality, and would not be tolerated by me for a minute for breeding purposes, as with me small crests are not much better than none, and spoils all; really it's "no crest no Polish" with me.

The kind of crest development that should be encouraged and approved by our judges, is those male specimens having crests not less than three inches to one foot or over in diameter, and females with crests to match, then the breeding of Polish will be worth while.

The White Crested Black Polish are the most popular of the dozen or more varieties which are bred, both plain and bearded, but here I am to the point where to describe each would make a book, and I am thinking how to begin and how to end. Yes, I could give an accurate standard (?) descriptive of this beautiful class of fowls, but such a cold, lifeless narrative it would be by itself, lacking the very essence of the description, as I see it, and would wish to present you, hence I bring to my relief a couple of illustrations in black and white, which will convey some idea of the high quality and great beauty this class can be brought up to, though I hope the reader will be able to see the living bird in all its natural beauty. The black one with its snow white crest as large as your two fists together; the blue ones with the same colored crest and the Andalusian coloring and lacing; the pure white one; the Silver Laced; the Golden Laced, and Buff Laced; and Spangled.

TAKE NO SUBSTITUTE.

Golden and Silvers, the pure Buffs with the white crest; and the black crested white, if they ever existed, are not bred these modern times. All are duplicate in type or shape, and having such mammoth crests and a symmetry or carriage that surpasses any known class of fancy poultry. Imagine you see them running here and there in the yard. See the cock bird has found a morsel. He signals to the hens; there is a rush, then a bobbing mass of snow white balls, or silver laced, golden laced or buff come in a bunch, apparently tumbling about as bad as the players in a foot ball game, in the midst of which stands the proud cock bird, like an umpire, with his beautiful capped head arched above the restless crowd of his scarcely less handsome concubines.

The pheasant in its gorgeous colors is a handsome bird, but a flock of Polish of any variety is perhaps one of the most pleasing sights to the true lover of nature to be found among any of the many "two legged" hobbies the fancier may search for. After you have followed their antics on "the green lawn," go with me into the roost at night fall and see the long rows of white balls (crests), or silver or golden ones tinted with black, or the golden buff ones all mirrored on a background of black or buff or silver or gold, and you will acknowledge that truly it is a pleasing sight.

I have no Polish to sell, but hope there will be some interest taken in behalf of these handsome chickens, that I as well as other of my fellow poultry judges may soon find better quality in the "Polish alleys" of the future shows we may judge. —Wick Hathaway in Inland Poultry Journal.

The Proper Mating of Buff Leghorns.

Many articles have been written, and many theories advanced regarding the proper mating of Buff Leghorns, but experience is the teacher we must fall back on in the long run; however, as a slight suggestion often puts one on the road to success and saves much time and many disappointments, I will endeavor to give a brief outline of my system of mating which has produced for me a fine percentage of exhibition and breeding birds, with an occasional cracker.

Could we place our hands on such birds as we picture in our mind's eye, the producing of ter. But as this is impossible we must take the best we have on hand or can procure. The question that at once arises is, which is the best?

We have, perhaps, half a dozen males to select from, varying in color from lemon buff to cinnamon red. On looking over our females we find a much more uniform lot at first sight, but on closer inspection we find much the same variations in a modified degree.

Our first step is the selection of our male birds. Were we to mate up two pens we would select as strong colored birds as possible to head these pens. I do not mean by this red or cinnamon, but of as uniform shade throughout as possible.

For convenience we will designate these pens as No. 1 and No. 2.

For No. 1 we would select a male as near as might be to the standard description, viz., golden buff throughout. He must be vigorous, of good Leghorn type, strong in undercolor, good in comb and lobes. Should a little foreign color appear in wings or tail do not discard the bird. We have seen many prize winners bred from males with a little white, black or gray in wings or tail. However, this should be avoided if possible. With such a bird I would put females of a deeper shade of buff than is known as exhibition color. Should the male be weak in any section see that the females are extra strong in that section, (this applies to shape as well as color.)

From this mating we should expect an especially fine lot of females with a fine percentage of good males.

For No. 2 pen we should select a male of a darker shade than the first, as free from red as possible, but of a deep rich buff, both surface and undercolor, with a little chestnut or black in tail, and a clear, strong wing. See that the quills as well as web of feathers are buff. He should be large, of good carriage, with a moderately low tail. Comb should be rather small, of a fine texture, and perfectly upright, free from twists and thumb marks.

We would mate with him females of exhibition buff shade throughout, clear in wing and tail, and of as good undercolor as possible. For this pen we would select females with as upright a comb as could be found. From such a mating we should expect some grand male birds, fit to show in any company. We would also look for good females, especially good breeders.

One thing however, must be remembered before you can hope to gain any great success. You must establish your own line of breeding. This may require several years, especially if your present stock is from the yards of several different breeders. The best way is to select some good breeder who has a well established strain and secure your new blood from him. Be thorough and earnest, determined that each succeeding year shall show a marked improvement in your flock, and success will surely crown your efforts.

Brother fancier, you who would win for yourselves a place in the front ranks of your fellow breeders, let me urge you to join the Buff Leghorn Club. It will mark one step on the road to success.

Send your name and dollar today to me or to the secretary.

A Long-Tailed Japanese Hen.

Japan, which is the source of all sorts of "freaks" in the animal and vegetable worlds, has produced nothing stranger than her breed of long-tailed fowls, a specimen of which has just arrived at the Museum of Natural History in New York. The tail feathers of this bird measure no less than twelve feet. We quote the following paragraphs about this curious breed of fowls from an article contributed to the Scientific American by Walter L. Beasley, says the Louisville, (Ky.) Times. Says Mr. Beasley:

"The introduction of the breed is said to have been brought about by a Prince of Japan, whose imperial crest was a feather. Yearly he offered a prize to the subject who would bring to him the longest feather. The greatest effort and skill were therefore employed by the breeders to produce the greatest length of tail feathers possible. At present only a few old fanciers know the secret process of successfully breeding these fowls. A few authentic details have, however, been obtained in regard to the method of their breeding. The particular breed is confined to the region in and around Kochi, the capital of a province of Tasso. The breed is about a hundred years old and is fast dying out. There is said to be no artificial method of making the feathers grow. All is done by selection. Moreover, one must know how to treat the birds during the various stages of tail growth. The body feathers springing from the shoulders attain a length of four feet. Two years is the time necessary to produce a full growth of tail. The tail feathers grow from four to seven inches a month and continue to increase as long as the bird lives, which is usually from eight to ten years. The hens lay about thirty eggs in the spring and autumn, which are hatched by other fowls. The hens are kept housed up and sit all day on a flat perch, and are taken out only once in two days and allowed to walk half an hour or so, a man holding up the tail to prevent them from being torn or soiled. The birds are fed on unhulled rice and greens, and secret food known and prepared by the old fanciers themselves. They demand plenty of water and are wonderfully tame. The ordinary number of long tail feathers possessed by each bird is fifteen or sixteen. About twice a month they are carefully washed in warm water, and afterward dried on some high place, usually a roof. The present price is $50 for a bird having a tail over ten feet long. There are four varieties of the breed: White head and body feathers and tail black; second, white all over with yellow legs; third, red neck and body feathers; fourth, reddish color mixed with white on body. All these, with the exception of the second variety, have black tail feathers."

Dancing Stars.

The revelations of the spectroscope, which is capable of showing the displacement of stars toward or from the earth, make the starry heavens, to the astronomer's eye, appear almost as full of mazy motions as is a cloud of gnats dancing in the sunbeams. Every increase in the power of observing apparatus brings to notice new "spectroscopic binaries," which are simply double stars that cannot be separately seen, either because of their extreme closeness or because only one of them is a shining body. It is the erratic motions of these wonderful stars that reveal their true character. One of the latest to be discovered is Eta Orionis, which hangs just below the belt of Orion. Sometimes this star is speeding toward the earth more than 40 miles a second, and a few nights later is hurrying away with a similar velocity.—Youth's Companion.

THE NEW YORK HERALD says:—"Mr. Graham, in the telling of facts, leaves the reader free to make the deduction that several naval officers need a Court of Inquiry to re-establish their reputations, if they can be re-established."

A RIVER PASTORAL.

It was a random rhyme,
Blithe-hearted as the May,
Who plucked the flowering climber
Along the river way,
It was the ferryman's daughter,
With gypsy rose and tan,
Who ferried o'er the water
This straying minstrel man.

Her hair had purple tints
Above her sea-shell ear;
Her eyes had starry glintings;
Her laugh was lyric clear.
He listened and he lingered—
(His trust was one with Fate!)
Till eve, the fairy-fingered,
Had shut day's sunset gate.

Thus oft they met thereafter,
At last no more to part,
For Love (or was it laughter?)
Had shared the rhyme's heart.
And now upon life's ocean
The twin together float;
He's captain—that's his notion!
But she still steers the boat!
—Clinton Scollard, in Lippincott's.

REWARD OF THE FAITHFUL
A Dusky Tale of Love and Victory
By S. B. HACKLEY.

THE dusky black face bent over the posthole into which the iron digger dropped with power, was as wooden as the oaken handle of the tool itself, but the impassive exterior was but as the ashes that choke the mouth of the volcano—there were fires of emotion within.

Ben's blue cheek sleeves were wet from shoulder to wrist in the vehemence of his exertions, but his hands could not keep pace with the rush of his thoughts.

Herein lay his trouble: Lurinda, laundress at Locust Hill, going home from "meetin'" the evening before, had scornfully refused (for the third time) to name the day she would take him as her second husband—and he had loved Lurinda with the faithful love of a dull man long before she married Shay Beasley—yellow-faced Shay—with whom she had led anything but an easy life until a fatal combination of whisky and pneumonia made her a widow.

"Lurindy," Ben had pleaded, "whuf fuh yuh keep puttin' me off dat way? I's wait en' wait all de seben yeah yuh m'ah'd tuh Shay. Now Shay been dead en' gone tuh glory dese two yeah, whuf fuh yuh g'wine mek me wait any longuh?"

And Lurinda, tall, stern, and gaunt as a bear in spring, but to faithful Ben all that was lovely and desirable, had looked down from her superior physical and mental heights to answer:

"I's ain' g'wine fuhgit my duty tuh de dead tuh grat'fy de lub o' no libin'—naw suh—I ain' nigh got de slab obeh Shay, nuh yit de coffin roun' him paid fuh—an' 'twell dey paid fuh, tuh de las' cent, I ain' g'wine let mahin' come in my hade!"

Ben looked at the set jaw of his betrothed with a sinking heart. Well he knew it would be many a day before

AUNT JINNY MAKES LURINDY BLUSH WITH SHAME.

Lurinda could spare enough from her hard earnings to complete the payment on the casket and the oaken slab over Shay; she had the rent to pay and the five children to feed. Yet he dared not offer to help her, for had she not said, time and again, that she would never marry another man who could not give her a home, and was he not depriving himself of everything but the bare necessities, to make slow payments on the house with the crooked chimney at the outskirts of Little Mason?

He said no more, but in humility and dejection bade Lurinda good night at her door.

"I's waited longah fuh Lurindy dan Jacob fuh Rachel," he mused, as the iron cut into the yellow clay, "en' Lawd knows how much longah I's got tuh wait wid de possib'ity o' a fine 'oman lak huh uh gittin' uh bettuh chanc den me."

The fence the heavy-hearted lover was building lay between the highway and a sloping pasture-field, in the upper corner of which next the road was the negro cemetery, protected by a tumble-down "worm" fence from the encroachments of the yellow Jerseys in the grass-field. The railroad lay, hot and shining, in the Indian summer sun across the southern end of the field. A long freight train, weighted with gray building-stone, tore by, leaving a stream of sparks and smoke in its wake.

Ben wiped away the sweat drops as the stifling air grew hotter, but it was not until the two Jersey cows, with bellows of fright, ran by him in a frantic rush for the great ponds which lay beside the fence at the foot of the upward slope, that he observed that the long, dry grass, inflammable as tissue-paper, was a wall of flame.

His heart leapt in his throat. Shay's grave with its unpaid-for wooden marker was in the rude cemetery on the hill, close by the tumble-down fence with its corners heaped with dry leaves and dead growth of goldenrod and "everlasting." If that slab was burned—good-by to his hopes of Lurinda! He threw one quick glance at the coming firecloud, then looked toward the graveyard on the hilltop. Could he make it?

Before three seconds were gone he had dipped himself in the pond, and with his ragged cap running rivers of waters and his dripping coat in his hand, was running like a mad thing up the road. The hot air burned his cheeks and took his breath when he reached Lurinda's mound, but with the energy of desperation he wrenched the oak slab loose from its foundation block and wrapped his wet coat about it just as the fire leapt through the fence and caught the everlasting and the short grass on Shay's grave.

The stinging smoke choked and blinded him—the scorching flames licked at his hands, but he clasped his precious burden hard and stumbled into the road. Happily a dozen hurried steps brought him to the great pond with its waters of safety.

After a time Ben crept painfully up the road to his cabin. A gaping crowd of neighbors came to exclaim over him and minister to his needs. Old Aunt Jinny, Ben's best friend, was loud in condemnation of his foolhardy feat.

"Lawd, Ben, you is sho' crazy!" she exclaimed, as she bound up his blistered hands and bathed his scorched face—"Dat niggah Lurindy ain' wuth no sich strivin' ez dis, no way en' no how! Now some you niggus stay heah en' teck keer o' Ben while I go fine Lurindy ez fas' ez my ole feet kin tote me ober de groun'! I gw'ine fahly put dat wench tuh shame!"

In the gathering dusk Lurinda, with withered water-soaked hands and suds-sprinkled dress, made her way humbly to Ben's home.

Ben's eyes brightened as the angular form of his beloved appeared in the doorway.

"Lurindy," he said, thickly, pointing with one cottonswath hand to the tall slab leaning against his bed—its splendor untarnished—"Lurindy, I save it fuh yuh!"

The tears streamed down Lurinda's dark face—Aunt Jinny had done her work well, and the sight of Ben's bandaged hands was an added prick to her conscience.

"Yuh mout uh buhnt up," Ben, she quavered, between sobs. "Yuh mout uh died savin' dat piece o' wood—en' den da' wouldn' been no use o' me livin'! O Ben, I ain' gwine let dat ole debt stan' between me an' you no moah! En' I's ready tuh mah' yuh now—right now—ef dat'll mek' yeh any happih!"

Ben's eyes widened with hope—incredulity—joy. He looked at the downcast face of Lurinda, then at his useless hands, and opened and shut his mouth helplessly.

"Why, Lurindy, gal," he stammered at length, "I won't be able to wuk fuh yuh, fuh uh long time. En' I ain't got de house paid fuh yit," he added, weakly.

"Whut dat mattuh?" Aunt Jinny spoke in a tone of command. "Shet up dat mout o' yuh'n, Ben! Ef Lurindy willin' teck yuh now, den yuh try tuh put huh out'n de notion! Can't some yuh niggus go git de preachuh?" she asked, turning to the other open-mouthed guests.

Volunteers were not lacking, and a little later, Ben, leaning on the arm of Lurinda, with the light of love and the fruition of hope illuminating his countenance, walked down the road to her cabin. A broad shaft of light from the open door fell on the coal-ash path, and five woolly heads were thrust out to welcome "Mammy."

"Chilluns," announced Lurinda, proudly, as she led Ben in, "I's fetch yuh uh new puppy! Breng de cushion! cheer. Smyrna Ann, en' Ned, yuh en' Zeky kin teck dis dime an' go tuh de stoah en' git some reesins, while Loueezy en' Calline sets de fish in de stove. We gwine hab reesins cake fuh suppuh. Yo' pappy pow'ful foud o' reesins' cake."—N. Y. Post.

Naming the Child.
Now, necessarily, when the new girl baby arrived there was much discussion among the members of the family as to what her name should be.

"We will call her 'Geraldine,'" said the fond mother.

"Why not call her 'Esmeralda?'" asked the first grandmother. "I saw that name in a story once, and always wanted to try it on a baby."

"O," murmured the second grandmother, "that would never do. Let us call her 'Fanchon.'"

"But don't you think 'Eltesa' is a pretty name, and so odd, too?" put in one of the aunts.

"Excuse me, ladies," ventured the poor father, who sat near by, "but you seem to forget we are trying to find a name for a human being, and not for a five-cent cigar."—Baltimore American.

What We Owe to Cockfighting.

The now disreputable amusement of cock-fighting (which was once respectable enough to divide with scholarship and archery the attention of Roger Ascham) has provided the language with "crestfallen," "in high feather," and Shakespeare's "overcrow," (of, to crow over). "To show the white feather" is from the same source, since white feathers in a gamecock's tail are a sign of impure breeding. Often the origin of such words or phrases has been quite forgotten, but, when traced, discloses their true character at once. "Fair play" is still recognized as a figure from gambling; but "foul play," now specialized to "murder," is hardly felt as a metaphor at all. — Open Court.

Quite Unintentional.
"Bessie, dear, can't you keep your chair from squeaking when you rock it?"
"I didn't know it squeaked, mamma."—Chicago Tribune.

Medical Talk is the name of one of the most recent of popular medical magazines for the home before the public to-day. It appears in an unique, up-to-date magazine cover, an ornament to any library table.

Medical Talk is in the fourth year of its existence and covers a field never before accomplished in journalism. This magazine undertakes to interpret to the people what is going on in the medical world as revealed by the numberless medical journals intended for doctors only. It brings to the household important facts hidden from the people by medical technicalities. It deals in a popular way with such questions as vaccination, sanitary laws, cremation, dietary rules, and all drugless methods of healing diseases.

During the past three months almost every leading daily paper throughout the United States and Canada has had something to say about Medical Talk, either editorially or in their magazine or book department. The opinions expressed are of a most complimentary nature.

There is more Catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together, and until the last few years was supposed to be incurable. For a great many years doctors pronounced it a local disease, and prescribed local remedies, and by constantly failing to cure with local treatment, pronounced it incurable. Science has proven catarrh to be a constitutional disease, and therefore requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio, is the only constitutional cure on the market. It is taken internally in doses from 10 drops to a teaspoonful. It acts directly on the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. They offer one hundred dollars for any case it fails to cure. Send for circulars and testimonials. Address F. J. CHENEY & CO., Toledo, O. Sold by druggists, 75c. Hall's Family Pills are the best.

A THIRSTY SCOUT.

Survived a Dose of Alkali Water That Killed Mules.

A prominent army official tells an interesting story of the late Frank C. Bennett, one of the most famous scouts of the Southwest 20 years ago, says the Baltimore Sun.

"Bennett," says the officer in question, "was forced to follow a trail into the famous Staked Plain of Texas, and, like many others, lost his way and wandered four days without food or water. He was so long absent that the commander of the detachment from which he had been sent was at last forced to conclude that Bennett, despite all his wonderful knowledge of the country, and his almost superhuman power of endurance, had been added to the long list of that arid plain's victims.

"We were all sitting around the camp fires discussing the matter one night, when suddenly the attention of one of the group was attracted by a wraith-like figure coming out of the shadows some 30 feet away.

"By the Lord Harry, it's Bennett himself!" shouted one of the men.

"But as we arose to our feet the shouts of joy froze on our lips—Bennett, crazed by thirst, had thrown himself prone before a pool of alkali water, from drinking which two mules had died that day, and was lapping it up with his tongue hanging out of his mouth and his breath coming in short, quick gasps like a winded hound.

"It was a dramatic moment. The man had been slowly dying for days for want of water, and now it appeared that water was to cause his death.

"But regular army officers don't waste time in thinking of the dramatic interest of anything. We pulled Bennett away from that pool fighting like a half-starved hyena, and then we crammed hard down his throat as fast as he could take it.

"He didn't die. He simply became an animated soap factory for a space and then he recovered.

"We taunted Bennett after that by telling him that his constitution had been proved to be harder than that of a mule."

PHOTOGRAPHS OF HORSES.

Devices of the Artist to Make the Subject Look Pleasant.

"Now an auto," said the roadside photographer to a New York Sun reporter, "is easy, for it stands still. But it's different with a horse.

"To get a good picture of a horse you've got to fix his attention and interest him as you would a child. The dullest and laziest of horses may not stand still, or he may slouch into some unhandsome attitude, so that he won't look very pretty when you do get him.

"The spirited, lively horse finds it hard to stand still at all. He's bobbing his head or moving somehow all the time, so that he's hard to get; and then the finest horse looks better in some attitudes than he does in others. It is a common thing for the photographer to take pictures of the turnouts of people out driving, to have somebody interest the horse, to get him at once quiet and into a good attitude while he takes his picture.

"The picture taker having his camera conveniently located, the man who is to have his outfit taken drives into position and halts. The photographer, all ready for taking the picture and waiting now only for the horse to stand still and look well, calls in his assistant, who standing in front of the horse and ten or 20 feet away, attracts the animal's attention.

"Sometimes he has a little rattle for this purpose; sometimes he holds up a bunch of grass. It might be that he would wave a handkerchief gently, at the same time calling to the horse. Then you see things happen.

"Even though he was a handsome horse anyway he looks more so than ever in that first look at the man who has attracted his attention. It may be that he's just a bit startled, and he stands there perfectly erect, head up and all attention, ears thrown forward, a keen alertness in every line, a most spirited figure of a horse; and for the moment motionless; and in that happy moment you get him."

ENCAMPMENT OVER.

Company D Returned Home First of Week.

The encampment of the State Guard at Mammoth Cave ended the first of the week and Company D returned home on a special train Monday afternoon. Capt. Geo. W. Phelps was in command of the local company.

The Morganfield company returned with Company D and left here Tuesday morning for home.

The encampment was a great success and the home boys expressed themselves as being well pleased with the ten days' outing.

Only a Mask.

Many are not being benefited by the summer vacation as they should be. Now, notwithstanding much outdoor life, they are little if any stronger than they were. The tan on their faces is darker and makes them look healthier, but it is only a mask. They are still nervous, easily tired, upset by trifles, and they do not eat nor sleep well. What they need is what tones the nerves, perfects digestion, creates appetite, and makes sleep refreshing, and that is Hood's Sarsaparilla. Pupils and teachers generally will find the chief purpose of the vacation best subserved by this great medicine which, as we know, builds up the whole system.

A Cure for Cholera Infantum.

"Last May," says Mrs. Curtis Baker, of Bookwalter, Ohio, "an infant child of our neighbor's was suffering from cholera infantum. The doctor had given up all hopes of recovery. In two days' time the child had fully recovered, and is now (nearly a year since) a vigorous, healthy girl. I have recommended this remedy frequently and have never known it to fail in any single instance." For sale by C. K. Wyly.

MISSING HUSBAND

Said to Have Deserted His Wife Here.

Madisonville, Ky., Aug. 19.—Mrs. Lalla McKeown McKinley, an estimable young woman of this place, was deserted by her husband of a few weeks last Thursday and her brother is on the man's trail for an explanation.

Mrs. McKinley followed her husband to Murfreesboro, Tenn., and he agreed to return here with her. When they reached Hopkinsville, however, she says McKinley left the train and she came on home. She says she gave him no cause to desert her.

McKinley was formerly a printer and lived at Murfreesboro, Tenn.

Post-graduate courses of study are also provided, leading each to master's degree. Each course of study is organized under a separate faculty. The general faculty numbers more than forty professors and instructors.

County Appointees receive tuition, room rent in dormitories, fuel and lights, and if they remain ten months, traveling expenses.

The laboratories and museums are large, well equipped, comprehensive and modern. The last and the preceding Legislatures appropriated $60,000 for a college home for young women and $30,000 for drill hall and gymnasium for men.

Military tactics and science are fully provided for and required by Congress.

Graduated from the several courses of study readily find excellent positions and liberal remunerations. The demand is largely in excess of the ability of college to supply.

APPENDICITIS.

Some Facts Regarding Its Rapid Increase.

Appendicitis among Americans is certainly increasing and while this is probably due to the excitement and worry of American business life, it is more often directly traceable to constipation. Appendicitis is caused by extraneous matter entering the vermiform appendix and not by the swallowing of seeds. If the digestive organs are kept in perfect condition so the food is duly assimilated and the bowels move gently, at least once a day, appendicitis will never develop. Don't take chances. Regular doses of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin before meals will strengthen the organs of digestion, your appetite will be good, constipation disappears and you feel better in every way. Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin does not relax the bowels by irritation, but by curing indigestion, the cause of constipation. All druggists sell it in 50c and $1.00 bottles, under a positive guarantee. Write for book of testimonials to Pepsin Syrup Co., Dept. S, Monticello, Ill.

Summer Complaint.

A YOUNG LADY'S LIFE SAVED

At Panama, Columbia, By Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy.

Dr. Chas. H. Utter, a prominent physician, of Panama, Columbia, in a recent letter states: "Last March I had as a patient a young lady sixteen years of age, who had a very bad attack of dysentery. Everything I prescribed for her proved ineffectual and she was growing worse every hour. Her parents were sure she would die. She had become so weak that she could not turn over in bed. What to do at this critical moment was a study for me, but I thought of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy and as a last resort prescribed it. The most wonderful result was effected. Within eight hours she was feeling much better; inside of three days she was upon her feet and at the end of one week was entirely well." For sale by C. K. Wylie.

EIGHT HUNDRED

Is the Number of Delegates Who Were Here.

Greatest Gathering of Sunday School Workers Ever in Kentucky.

The thirty-seventh annual convention of the Kentucky State Sunday School Association opened Tuesday with between seven and eight hundred accredited delegates present. It is the largest religious body that has met in this region in many years. A special train from Louisville brought 195 delegates and every regular train carried its quota. Upon their arrival the delegates were driven in carriages from the stations to the Methodist church, where a public reception was held and homes were assigned. Nearly every county in the State is represented, and there are large delegations from nearly every city. Each Sunday school is entitled to one delegate, and to one additional to every hundred enrolled, and each county has a right to send ten delegates-at-large. All ministers are ex-officio delegates.

The programme was of unusual interest. Among the prominent speakers were International General Secretary Marion Lawrence, of Toledo, O.; the Rev. Dr. H. M. Hamill, of Nashville, Tenn.; the Rev. Dr. A. L. Phillips, of Richmond, Na.; the Rev. Dr. Burris A. Jenkins, president of Kentucky University; the Rev. T. C. Gebauer, of Madison, Ind.; the Rev. John A. McKamy, of Nashville, Tenn.; State Secretary E. A. Fox, of Louisville; State President J. B. Weaver, the Rev. Henry H. Sweets, Miss Nannie Lee Frayser, of Louisville; the Rev. Dr. George W. Briggs, of Paducah; the Rev. Dr. Charles F. Evans, of Versailles, the Rev. Frank M. Thomas, of Henderson, and others.

Mr. Robert M. Hopkins, of Louisville, had charge of the music, and the choir was composed of the best singers from all the churches in the city. The Rev. Dr. W. L. Nourse, of this city presided at the opening service. There was an address of welcome by the Rev. H. D. Smith, pastor of the Christian church. The response was spoke by Mr. Sam W. Bedford, of Owensboro. The feature of the evening was an excellent address on "The Demands of the Hour."

DR. HAMILL'S ADDRESS.

About 2500 people heard Dr. H. M. Hamill, of Nashville, Tuesday night and his address proved to be one of sursasing interest.

Wednesday's Sessions.

The morning session was held at the Methodist church and the church proved entirely too small to hold the crowd.

Devotional exercises were conducted by Rev. E. B. Kuntz, of Henderson.

General Secretary Marion Lawrence, of Toledo, on "The State Association," its purpose, its plans, its progress, its power, its practical results, were all ably handled by different speakers.

Rev. C. J. Meddis, of Louisville, read the report of the executive committee.

President J. B. Weaver, of Louisville, delivered his annual address.

Dr. Hamill, who always holds close attention, ably discussed "Bible Study for Lady Workers."

Rev. B. A. Jenkins, of Lexington, was the last speaker at the morning session. He discussed the work of theological seminaries in training Sunday school workers.

AFTERNOON SESSION.

The afternoon session was held at the Union Tabernacle and probably 2,000 people were present in spite of the intense heat.

Rev. J. C. Reid, of Paducah, presided and the subject "Twentieth Century Methods" was discussed by Dr. Hamill, E. A. Fox and others.

Rev. Henry H. Sweets, of Louisville, delivered an earnest address on "Soul Winning in the Sunday Schools." He proved to be one of the most entertaining speakers of the session and was given close attention throughout.

The Primary Conference was conducted by Miss Nannie Lee Frayser, of Louisville, assisted by Miss Fannie King, of Memphis. Mrs. S. A. Murray, of Franklin, discussed "Eye-Teaching in the Primary." Miss King taught a lesson to show her method and Miss Frayser concluded with "A Bible Story."

WEDNESDAY NIGHT SESSION.

Fully 3,000 persons were present when the night session began with the illustrated prayer and song service, by R. M. Hopkins, of Louisville. This proved to be a most entertaining feature. A stereopticon was used to throw the words of a song upon a large curtain, which would be followed by a succession of pictures illustrating the song. Among the songs thus treated were "Beulah Land," "Rock of Ages," "Nearer My God to Thee," and "Old Kentucky Home." The latter song was not appropriately represented. In a kindly spirit we would advise Mr. Hopkins to drop the "Uncle Tom's Cabin" pictures in illustrating the song all Kentuckians love. There were very few Simon Laegrees and slave auctioneers around the old homes of Kentucky.

At this juncture the Committee on Nominations brought in the name of Rev. E. B. Kuntz, pastor of the Henderson Christian church, for President, and he was elected to succeed Mr. J. B. Weaver without opposition. Mr. Weaver held the position two years and made a capital presiding officer.

Secretary E. A. Fox submitted his annual report, showing that of 600,000 white children of school age in Kentucky, only 100,000 attend Sunday Schools. The financial affairs of the association were shown to be in good condition. All debts are paid and a small balance remains on hand. Seventy-five counties have held conventions during the year.

This was followed by Treasurer E. N. Woodruff's report. This showed a balance of $177.32.

"Facing the Future" was then discussed by Mr. Marion Lawrence, who said the revenues last year were $4,000 and he asked that the counties increase their contributions of last year 50 per cent. This called for the subscription of $2,000 and about $1,300 was raised in a few minutes, after which the meeting adjourned.

Thursday Morning.

The general discussion on Sunday School work, participated in by about twenty-five speakers, was the first order and an hour was most profitably spent. This meeting was held at the Tabernacle. At the same hour the woman's discussion of teaching primary grades was in progress at the Baptist church. This was conducted by Miss Fannie King, Miss Nannie Lee Frayser and Mrs. Lucy Overby.

After 10 o'clock both meetings were merged into one at the Tabernacle and the principal topics were "Making of a Successful Convention" and "The Work of the County Executive Committee."

THURSDAY AFTERNOON.

Perhaps the most interesting of all the discussions was that of Thursday afternoon on "Preparation and Presentation of the Lesson." This was led by Dr. A. L. Phillips and Marion Lawrence and the subject was divided into five parts:

- 1—"The Teacher With the Work."
- 2—"The Art of Questioning."
- 3—"The Art of Illustration."
- 4—"The Teaching that Touches."
- 5—"Summary of Principle."

Many of the leading workers participated in the discussion and much valuable information was brought out.

Rev. T. C. Gebauer then conducted a "Round Table on Sunday School Management."

Dr. G. W. Briggs, of Paducah, followed with an able address on "The Message and The Messenger."

The session was concluded with two-minute talks, giving reports from the counties.

THE CLOSING SESSION.

The last session was held last evening, the prayer service being conducted by Rev. John A. McKamy, of Nashville.

The stereopticon entertainment was repeated for half an hour, presenting pictures of well known workers.

Dr. A. L. Phillips discussed "The Opportunities of the Denominations in the Interdenominational Work."

The last address was by Rev. Frank M. Thomas, of Henderson,

Ky., his subject being "The Fall of Jericho."

The association then closed the most successful convention it has ever held.

THE DELEGATES PRESENT.

The number of delegates in the city was carefully estimated at 700 from a distance and 200 from the city and county. The late hours at which the large excursions arrived Tuesday made it almost impossible to assign homes to all before the following morning. The committee worked hard and those not assigned were sent to the hotels for meals and about 40 were located on cots at the Racket building. The next morning all were assigned homes. The confusion was caused by assigning in advance many who did not come and those not assigned could not be placed until the vacancies were found and reported.

The people opened their homes and hearts to the visitors, and no better body of people have ever been entertained in the city.

In every way the meeting was a distinct success. After the confusion of the first arrivals, homes were found for all visitors and even more could have been entertained.

The benefits of the great union meetings, participated in by able men and earnest women of all denominations, are apparent to all and nothing but good feeling and unity of purpose characterized the meeting.

A PRETTY POSTMISTRESS NARROWLY ESCAPES DEATH.

Was Given Up to Die--Eight Doctors Failed--Pe-ru-na Saved Her Life.

THOUSANDS of women suffer from systemic catarrh. This is sure to produce such symptoms as cold feet and hands, sick headache, palpitation of the heart and heavy feelings in the stomach.

Then begins a series of experiments with medicine. They take medicine for sick headache. They take medicine for nervous prostration, for palpitation of the heart, for dyspepsia. None of these medicines do any good because they do not reach the cause of the complaint.

Peruna at once mitigates all these symptoms by removing the cause.

Systemic catarrh is the trouble. Systemic catarrh pervades the whole system, deranges every organ, weakens every function. No permanent cure can be expected until the systemic catarrh is removed.

This is exactly what Peruna will do. Miss Alma Cox, Assistant Postmistress of Orem, S. C., writes:

"I have been a great sufferer from chronic disease and dyspepsia for five years. How I suffered no tongue can tell. I tried eight or ten of the best physicians without receiving much benefit, also tried lots of patent medicines. But still I suffered with sick headache, cold feet and hands, palpitation of the heart, and such a heavy feeling in my stomach and chest. At times I would be so nervous I could not bear anyone around me. I had been given up to die."

"One day a friend sent me one of Dr. Hartman's pamphlets, and I decided to write to him. He advised Peruna and Manalin, and after taking the medicine two weeks I felt greatly relieved. My head did not pain me any scarcely, and my stomach was relieved of its heavy feeling. I am so thankful that I can say after using several bottles of the Peruna and Manalin I am restored to perfect health."

"Before using your remedies I could not eat anything. I lived on barley water and Panopeptin for two years. Now I can eat with pleasure. Everybody is so surprised at my improvement. Everyone says I am looking like a rose. I would advise all suffering women to take your remedies. I know it is well not for Peruna and Manalin I would have been in my grave to-day. I cannot thank you enough for the kind advice you have given me."—MISS ALMA L. COX.

Senator M. C. Butler, ex-Governor of South Carolina, writes from Washington, D. C., the following:

"I can recommend Peruna for dyspepsia and stomach trouble. I have been using your medicine for a short period, and I feel very much relieved. It is indeed a wonderful medicine, and besides a great tonic."—M. C. Butler.

Peruna restores health in a normal way. Peruna puts right all the mucous membranes of the body, and in this way restores the functions of every organ.

Dr. S. B. Hartman, President of The Hartman Sanitarium, of Columbus, O., gives advice to women free during the summer months.

Device That May Revolutionize Freight Carrying Business.

Experiments are being conducted by the Illinois Central with a device that may revolutionize the freight carrying business. The experiments are being made with a box car, the trucks of which are fitted with ball-bearing journals, which makes the car run so easily that a single person can move it. The bearing consists of four races of three-quarter-inch balls. The latter are built to take the thrust of the car when going around a curve. There 132 three-quarter-inch balls in each journal, each of which will sustain a crushing strain of 78,000 pounds. The car in question was loaded with 80,000 pounds of steel casting in Chicago, and made the trip to New Orleans, where it was loaded with coffee and returned to Chicago.

THE MODERN FATHER.

Disposes of Young Suitor's Request with Businesslike Precision.

"Did you call on her father this morning?"

"Yes, I did, and my head is whirling yet."

"Didn't use violence, did he?"

"Violence! I guess not. I go into his office all right. I had written asking for an appointment, and he at once pulled his watch on me, and said: 'I can give you just seven minutes. Talk fast.' Well, say, that rattled me so that I could only stammer. 'You want to marry my daughter, don't you?' he abruptly asked. I said I did. 'Anything else?' he roared. 'That's all,' I hastily said. He made a hurried memorandum. 'Did you put your request in writing?' I told him I hadn't done so. 'How irregular,' he snarled, and made another memorandum. 'When?' he yelled. 'When Miss Amy is ready,' I replied. 'She says June,' he snorted, and made another memorandum. 'Where do you want to go on your wedding journey?' he cried. 'Wherever Amy wants to go,' I murmured. 'She's going abroad,' he said, and worked away at another memorandum. 'One first-class suite on steamship Adriatic, June 25. I'll order it to-day. Anything else?' he growled. 'No, thank you,' I said. Then he put out a clammy hand. 'Glad to know you,' he said. 'Come in again some time when I'm not so busy. That's all. See you in June, I suppose. Good-day.' And I found myself gasping outside the door."—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

AN ERRONEOUS CONCLUSION.

The Fashionable Young Lady and Her Ping-Pong Eyes.

A fashionable young lady who was recently married was visited the other day by an old lady friend, who was shocked to see the youthful wife with "two lovely black eyes."

"Oh, dear, Matilda," exclaimed the excited old lady, "have you and Tom quarreled already?"

"Oh, Mrs. B—, we were just having a—"

"Who would have thought that Tom was such a villain!" retorted the confused visitor, interrupting the explanation.

"Oh, no," the young wife ventured to explain again, "Tom is not so bad as that, Mrs. B—. It was only in a—"

"I can't forgive him. The wretch to strike any defenseless woman!" interrupted the excited old lady once more.

The amused young woman tried again to explain, and smilingly responded: "Tom didn't strike me, Mrs. B—."

"He didn't strike you? Then how did he blacken your eyes?" inquired the curious matron.

"Oh," laughed the young lady, "you've been entirely mistaken. It was simply an accident. Tom and I were only playing at ping-pong."—London Answers.

GUATEMALA'S NATIONAL BIRD

It is the Quetzal and Is Said to Prefer Death to Captivity.

The republic of Guatemala decorates its coat of arms, its stamps and its official documents with the picture of a beautiful parrot. The bird is of a rich green color, with tufted head and a long tail, which frequently grows to a length of four or five feet.

It is found only in the forests of Guatemala. The green parrot or quetzal, as it is called, has been made the national emblem of Guatemala, just as the American eagle has become the national emblem of the United States.

The Guatemalans, says the New York Sun, are very proud of their national bird, and have written many songs and poems about it. The parrot was selected for the national emblem because it was found very hard to catch, and because tradition says that when once imprisoned, it always kills itself rather than remain in captivity.

The Guatemalans say that this bird which so skillfully eludes capture and dies rather than surrender is typical of their own country and its people.

The quetzal lives in the wildest parts of the mountains, and never visits the neighborhood of the towns or cities. The only parrots ever brought out of the forests are caught by the native Indians.

The parrots are too wary to be caught in a trap. The Indians first watch the parrot sometimes for days at a time until they discover their haunts. Then they smear the limbs of surrounding trees with thick glue.

The parrot perches on the sticky limb, and is held fast. The natives remove the bird from the limbs by the simple expedient of cutting off their feet.

No parrot has ever been brought from its forest home alive. They struggle desperately when caught, and when they find they cannot escape they kill themselves, so it is declared. The natives say that the birds always commit suicide in the same way, by pecking at their breasts until the jugular vein is exposed. A final peck severs the artery and the bird quickly bleeds to death. The quetzal dies, but never surrenders.

The green parrot stuffed, but its feet missing, is to be found in natural history museums all over the world. But no one has ever succeeded in keeping a specimen alive in captivity.

WATCH IN THE PIE.

Young Matron Baked Her Timepiece and Didn't Know It.

There is one young matron of Hartford who will no longer wear her watch when she goes into the kitchen to bake pie, says the Hartford Courant. The baking of pie is the only portion of the culinary work she does and she does this because her husband says it tastes like that "mother used to make."

Among the wedding presents of this young matron was a handsome watch which she thought so much of that she wore it on all occasions.

She decided to bake a pie last Saturday. All went well until a short time after the pie was placed in the oven, when she discovered that her watch was missing from her chate-laine on which it usually hung on her dress. She hunted all through the house but could find no watch. The husband returned home and he was told of the mishap. The wife became convinced that some person had stolen the watch and she could not be consoled.

The nice pie "like mother used to make" was brought on for dessert at dinner, and a generous portion given the husband. He looked at it and then asked his wife:

"What kind of a pie do you call this, my dear?"

"Mince pie, of course," replied the wife.

"Well, I should call it watch pie," remarked her husband as he produced the missing watch from the interior of the piece he was about to eat.

As this is an account of what actually happened it would not do to say that the watch was still keeping time. It was not, and the jeweler's bill for repairs of the baked watch will take considerable of the young matron's pin money.

England's Deepest Lake.

England has a deeper lake than any in Ireland—Wastwater, in Cumberland, which is 270 feet deep, and never freezes; but Ireland has the biggest in the kingdom—Lough Neagh, which covers nearly 100,000 acres, and whose waters wash five counties.

How to Begin.

TROUBLES OF THE BROWNS.

Existed for the Main Part in the Minds of the Gossips.

Scene: Handsomely furnished flat of the Daybreaks. Mrs. Daybreak rises with joyous greetings as Mrs. Knight enters. Usual feminine chatter for five minutes; then Mrs. Knight, bubbling over with importance, bends forward confidentially.

Mrs. Knight—My dear, did you ever hear anything about Sally Brown and her husband? That they were—er—uncongenial?

Mrs. Daybreak (in surprise)—No, never! What has happened? But I always instinctively distrust a man who has hazel eyes! Has—

Mrs. Knight—Well, I don't like to say anything; things certainly look queer. You know our windows overlook their yard and last night at half-past two o'clock I heard a sudden bang of the door and a figure in a white robe came flying out of the house as though hurried. I couldn't see whether it was Mr. Brown or Sally. Whichever one it was went staggering around the yard as though dazed and sort of moaning. The figure disappeared around the house and didn't come back.

Mrs. Daybreak—Well, of all things! How disgraceful to have a family row!

SCENE II.

Meeting of whist study class. Mrs. Daybreak the center of a small circle of four intimate friends who have just remarked that Sally Brown is not present.

Mrs. Daybreak (mysteriously)—No, poor thing!

Excited Chorus—Whatever do you mean?

Mrs. Daybreak—I'd never say a word about it only you all know her so well. But I have it on good authority that the Browns are very unhappy and last night affairs culminated in that brute throwing Sally out of doors.

Chorus—How scandalous!

SCENE III.

Dinner table of the White family: Mrs. White inquires why her husband looks so solemn.

Mr. White—I am rather upset by something I heard to-day. It came so straight I can't believe it is mere gossip. Smith told me—his wife heard it somewhere. It seems that Sally Brown has gone home to her own people and has entered suit for divorce. Brown always seemed such a nice fellow, but he turns out to be a whited sepulcher—gets tearing drunk, has taken to beating his wife and one night threw her down the front steps and broke her arm.

Mrs. White—How dreadful! He ought to be horsewhipped, the demon!

Mr. White—He ought. It's queer, but I've always had a funny feeling about Brown—instinct, I guess. Write to Sally, my dear, and let her know that you stand by her.

Mrs. White—How sweet of you! I'll do it and get all the other girls to do the same.

SCENE IV.

Breakfast-room in the house of Sally Brown and her husband. The two are peacefully demolishing an omelet.

Mr. Brown—Oh! I twisted that lame muscle again! Next time your Persian cat takes it into its head to tumble out of the second-story window you get some one else to go search for it! I've got inflammatory rheumatism, I believe, from my ghostly prowling in the damp.

Mrs. Brown (laughing)—You were a duck to go after him, Harry, and you waited a whole half hour there at the maple tree trying to coax him down. There's the postman's ring. The maid brings in a stack of letters which she deposits before Mrs. Brown.

Mrs. Brown—Gracious, what a lot of mail! And it's all been forwarded from mamma's!

Ten minutes later: The Browns are staring wildly at each other, after poring over the 11 bewildering and consolatory missives signed by Mrs. Brown's dearest friends.

Mrs. Brown (furiously)—I'd like to know what these women mean by their abuse of you, Harry! I'll tell them so to their faces—spiteful things! I shall dress and start at once!

Mr. Brown (escaping to his office) Go it, Sally, my love! I'd like to know what those lunatics mean, myself!—Chicago Daily News.

London's Fire Insurance.

Some idea of the vast wealth of London may be gathered from the fact that the fire insurance carried by the metropolis is now estimated to be $910,000,000.

There are people who let themselves run down physically until they live just on the edge of the danger line, between health and sickness. Some day they stagger across the line, and disease, like a bird of prey swoops down on them and they have to fight for life. The weak body invites disease. As the strength of the body is solely derived from food digested and assimilated, so physical weakness points to the fact that the food eaten is not assimilated and the body is growing weak through lack of nutrition.

Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery cures diseases of the stomach and other organs of digestion and nutrition, and so enables the perfect digestion and assimilation of food, by which the bodily strength is alone sustained.

"Thanks to Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery," writes Mr. Charles H. German, of Lehigh, Pa. "It is the only medicine that has done me any good. I tried everything I could think of to cure indigestion, and found I was only throwing away money. Then I heard of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery and tried a bottle of it, and to my joy found it was doing me good. I used six bottles of it, and am now cured. It is the best medicine on earth."

The sole motive for substitution is to permit the dealer to make the little more profit paid by the sale of less meritorious medicines. He gains, you lose, therefore accept no substitute for "Golden Medical Discovery."

Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets cure constipation. They do not beget the pill habit.

TEETHINA
(TEETHING POWDERS)

Rev. J. W. Berry (of Arkansas Methodist Conference, writes): "Enclosed find fifty cents for which please mail me two packages of 'TEETHINA.' We wonder how we have raised children without it. The other day a lady in Missouri sent us a package and it came at a most opportune time; our babe was in a serious condition; his bowels had been in bad condition for days, and nothing that we gave did any good; the second dose of 'TEETHINA' gave perfect relief and he has had no further trouble. Other members of the family have used it and every dose has been a perfect success."
